

A Story of Loss, Fear, and Forgotten Voices: Lives Uprooted, Homes Shattered, and the

Gulshan, Mandla, Madhya Pradesh

"We are left with nothing," said 28-year-old Gulshan to Miles2Smile, her voice heavy with pain. On June 15, just days before Eid, bulldozers flattened her home in Bhainswahi, Mandla—one of 14 Muslim houses demolished amid allegations of cow smuggling. The police found nothing in her home. Yet her house, her dignity, her peace—all were reduced to rubble. On Eid, while others celebrated, Gulshan wandered, clutching what little she could salvage, seeking shelter and receiving none. Forced to sign documents she couldn't read, under threat, she lost everything without cause. Miles2Smile stepped in with emergency aid—for her survival and her children's education. "Thank you, Miles2Smile, for seeing me," she said, eyes filled with tears. Her story is one
