

A mother who lost her son to hate

Ibris, a resident of Khargone, went missing on April 10 during communal violence. His family, unable to locate him during the curfew, searched relentlessly through mortuaries, rivers, and jails. After days of uncertainty, they learned a week later that Ibris had been killed and his body was in Indore.

The devastating loss left his wife, Muskaan, and their young son without a breadwinner. With Ibris' monthly income of just 3,000 rupees, the family faced severe financial hardship. Miles2Smile provided help to his wife Muskaan to rebuild their lives, offering a glimmer of hope in their sorrow.
