

A New Home, A New Hope:

Siphat's Fight After Nuh Violence

Siphat, along with his wife and children, migrated from a remote village to Sakras, Haryana, in search of a better life. However, high living costs and the struggle to find stable work left him in a worse situation than before. After months of effort, he found a truck driving job and saved enough to move his family into a small mud house in the Aravalli hills. However, their home was demolished during the Nuh violence on July 31. Despite having bought land, Siphat couldn't afford to rebuild. With support from Miles2Smile, he was able to purchase materials and rebuild his house.
